

The Liking of God Assignment

Assignment:

Write a list of 4-5 things you love to do followed by God loving to do those same things.

Purpose of the assignment:

- To articulate the things of human life on this earth that you enjoy doing, the things you were made for and that were made for you.
- To consider that God likes to do those very same things for the very same reasons.
- To connect God's liking with your liking, two living together as one.
- To see the shape of the new creation flowing out of your heart and God's heart together.

Specific thoughts.

I simply assumed that this was a light assignment until I wrote the example. As I wrote tears came to my heart, tears of comfort and goodness. It is no light thing to know how closely entwined our Father is with the things that we delight to do. It is symmorphe.

Specific directions for this assignment:

1. Use the assignment example as a model; use the words "I like to" and "God likes to – together with me –," but after those words fill in your own interests and desires. The words you will use and repeat (or words very similar) are highlighted in the first paragraph of my example.
2. This is a simple exercise, meant only to connect your own liking with God's liking in you as being real in your own mind and heart. Thus keep the length to, at the least four, and at the most five things.
3. When you are finished, post your list on The Liking of God Forum and comment on other learner's posts.

Things that God and I Like to Do Together

I like to read books. I like to sit in my easy chair and go on adventures throughout the history of the human experience. I like to understand and experience vicariously the life experiences of other people in other cultures and times. God likes to read books together with me. God and I like to sit in our easy chair and go on adventures together throughout the history of the human experience. We like to understand and experience vicariously the life experiences of other people in other cultures and times.

I like to write about what God is really doing right now in the earth. I like to draw on all the word that I stored in my heart over many years and see that word come together in wonderfully new forms upon the page. I like to know this God who lives in me. God likes to write about what He is doing in the earth together with me. God and I like to draw on all the word that we have stored in our heart over many years and see that word come together in wonderfully new forms upon the page. God likes to know this Daniel in whom He lives.

I like to do cultural things with my family. I like to go camping with them or dress up in old-fashioned outfits for some occasion. I like to experience with them other cultural and people experiences. God likes to do cultural things with my family together with me. God and I like to go camping or dress up in old-fashioned outfits for some occasion. We like to experience with our family other cultural and people experiences.

I like to teach students in a school classroom. I like to layout courses and lessons and open up understanding to them. I like it when their faces light up and when they come to me and say, "Mr. Yordy, I have never understand this until I took your course." God likes to teach students in a school classroom together with me. God and I together like to layout courses and lessons and open understanding to others. We like it when people's faces light and when they write to us and say, "Daniel and Father, I never understood these things until I took your course."

I like to design homey homes and to shape wood into beauty. I like the texture of wood outlined with color or texture. I like to consider the elements of design that make a house feel like home. I like to lay out the beauty of pieces of wood, large and small, into patterns. God likes to design homey homes and to shape wood into beauty together with me. God and I like to consider together the elements of design that make a house feel like home. We like to lay out the beauty of pieces of wood, large and small, into patterns.